There is one sure way of telling when politicians aren't telling the truth - their lips move.

~Felicity Kendal

Every woman feels she is too old and has missed the boat.

~Felicity Kendal

As we have more women in power, so the plays and the TV dramas are reflecting what's happening.

~Felicity Kendal

When I was little I always thought I was marked out, special, on the verge of something momentous. I used to tingle with anticipation.

~Felicity Kendal

I don't think, until you've actually lost somebody you really love, that you can go through that door that allows you to be grown-up.

~Felicity Kendal

For me, compatibility is a sense of humour, being able to laugh together; that is very important.

~Felicity Kendal

The gym is where I get my chill-out time. I try to go six days a week, but when I'm working, that goes down to about three.

~Felicity Kendal

I think you have to relax about aging. What else can you do?

~Felicity Kendal

I did try fillers once. Don't ever have fillers because when your cheekbones are high, it's chipmunk time.

~Felicity Kendal

So many roles for women demand that you make the audience fall in love with you or sympathise with you.

~Felicity Kendal

I hope to start enjoying flirting again when I'm 70, like my mother did.

~Felicity Kendal

When I was much younger, I sometimes felt rejected by feminists because of an image that I sold because it paid the bills. Any fool could tell my hair is dyed.

~Felicity Kendal

I don't treasure things much - just people. And pets.

~Felicity Kendal

I love gentle, gorgeous classical music such as Mozart.

~Felicity Kendal

It's nice not to have lines when you frown, especially on TV. I don't know why people make such a fuss about it. No one is interested if a woman has her teeth capped or her hair dyed.

~Felicity Kendal

I'm sure people in the business have said: She's too old for that part. I don't hear about it because your agent protects you from those negative things.

~Felicity Kendal

I'm not very much of a foodie; I like small amounts of delicious things, but I've never overeaten - I'd much rather have a glass of wine.

~Felicity Kendal

I don't take money seriously, so I can't keep any.

~Felicity Kendal

The girl-next-door image is a sort of joke; for years, I couldn't get any roles other than as somebody dark.

~Felicity Kendal

In a play, the director is God, and I'm a great arguer. Rather boringly so, I think, about trying different things.

~Felicity Kendal

I can be very difficult if people are not professional, or lazy - or the opposite, which is take themselves too seriously.

~Felicity Kendal

There is the most wonderful thing called Polaris: it's a very high frequency laser treatment that lifts and tightens the skin.

~Felicity Kendal

Success breeds success, and failure leads to a sort of fallow period.

~Felicity Kendal

I do still get the odd fan letter about The Good Life, clearly written by somebody aged 18, who says: Will you send a photograph? And I think: Maybe it's kinder not to. I'm deeply into my 50s now.
