I probably listen to more instrumental music than music with lyrics, but at the same time I do love both.

~Flume

What's funny for me is that I made a lot of the music I make with intentions of it being a song you listen to, to chill out.

~Flume

I'm all for in my production, creating really unique textures and sounds - for me that's what I love about music.

~Flume

I'm now much more aware of my mental state. I have a lot more control over it and can choose how I feel.

~Flume

Music really does just boil down to basically, essentially songwriting chords and melodies.

~Flume

I feel like I've gotten to a point where I don't know if it can get much bigger. I've been climbing and I feel very happy.

~Flume

I feel like New Zealand's a bit of an uncharted territory for me in a way.

~Flume

Most of the music I've listened to or grew up listening to - a lot of it at least - is instrumental stuff.

~Flume

Australian weather's amazing! You notice that when you go overseas.

~Flume

Once you make something you think it's awesome, but it's only after you listen to it for a few weeks then you actually get a proper perspective on it.

~Flume

It's more my own thing if I do instrumentals, but I also do really love collaborating with vocalists, so it's a good balance.
