The one thing you can do that the audience can't do - all those smart people online in the chat rooms can't do - is deliver a satisfying emotional journey for a human being, for a character.

~Frank Spotnitz

I love films where I'm looking around the world a little different now that I've seen that. I want something that nourishes my view of the world.

~Frank Spotnitz

Let's make really good stories that people get something out of. That's the one common denominator with everything I try to do.

~Frank Spotnitz

I like projects that are entertaining, where I'm emotionally engaged and there's something to think about afterwards.

~Frank Spotnitz

The challenge is creating a character that's rich and interesting to warrant following for a number of years.

~Frank Spotnitz

If my whole game depends on whether you can guess the ending or not, I'm done, forget it.

~Frank Spotnitz

Usually monsters are some aspect of human behavior or humanity at large.

~Frank Spotnitz

If people walk out of the movie and they think about it, then that's quite something.

~Frank Spotnitz

The beauty of a really good movie is that it's a whole world, complete in an hour and a half or two hours.

~Frank Spotnitz

It sounds corny, but I think people need stories to process the world. That's our business. That's the job we're in. We tell stories.

~Frank Spotnitz

I don't like television and movies where it's like, "Well, that was entertaining, but when I think back on it, that didn't really make sense and it's empty." That's like junk food, to me.

~Frank Spotnitz

You can't outsmart or outguess the audience in terms of what the narrative answer is.
