Happy is the man who finds a true friend, and far happier is he who finds that true friend in his wife.

~Franz Schubert

Anyone who loves music can never be quite unhappy.

~Franz Schubert

One bites into the brass mouthpiece of his wooden cudgel, and the other blows his cheeks out on a French horn. Do you call that Art?

~Franz Schubert

My compositions spring from my sorrows. Those that give the world the greatest delight were born of my deepest griefs.

~Franz Schubert

When I wished to sing of love, it turned to sorrow. And when I wished to sing of sorrow, it was transformed for me into love.

~Franz Schubert

You believe happiness to be derived from the place in which once you have been happy, but in truth it is centered in ourselves.

~Franz Schubert

Every night when I go to bed, I hope that I may never wake again, and every morning renews my grief.

~Franz Schubert

No one feels another's grief, no one understands another's joy. People imagine they can reach one another. In reality they only pass each other by.

~Franz Schubert

I am composing like a god, as if it simply had to be done as it has been done.

~Franz Schubert

Easy mind, light heart. A mind that is too easy hides a heart that is too heavy.

~Franz Schubert

O Mozart, immortal Mozart, how many, how infinitely many inspiring suggestions of a finer, better life you have left in our souls!

~Franz Schubert

There is no such thing as happy music.

~Franz Schubert

The guitar is a wonderful instrument which is understood by few.

~Franz Schubert

I am in the world only for the purpose of composing.

~Franz Schubert

The manager is to be blamed who distributes parts to his players which they are unable to act.

~Franz Schubert

There are two contrary impulses which govern this man's brain-the one sane, and the other eccentric. They alternate at regular intervals.

~Franz Schubert

Love is in the air these days, so we thought we'd give a try to make your day a little brighter.

~Franz Schubert

Why does God endow us with compassion?

~Franz Schubert

The greatest misfortune of the wise man and the greatest unhappiness of the fool are based upon convention.

~Franz Schubert

I want you for always...days, years, eternities.

~Franz Schubert

A man endures misfortune without complaint.

~Franz Schubert

If only your pure and clean mind could touch me, dear Haydn, nobody has a greater reverence for you than I have.

~Franz Schubert

There are eight girls in the house in which I am living, and practically all of them are good looking. You can realize that I am kept busy.

~Franz Schubert

I try to decorate my imagination as much as I can.

~Franz Schubert

Above all things, I must not get angry. If I do get angry I knock all the teeth out of the mouth of the poor wretch who has angered me.

~Franz Schubert

Who can do anything after Beethoven?

~Franz Schubert

No one really understands the grief or joy of another. We always imagine that we are approaching some other, but our lines of travel are actually parallel.

~Franz Schubert

The world resembles a stage on which every man is playing a part.

~Franz Schubert

No one really understands the grief or joy of another.

~Franz Schubert

Nobody understands another's sorrow, and nobody another's joy.

~Franz Schubert

Why should the composer be more guilty than the poet who warms to fantasy by a strange flame, making an idea that inspires him the subject of his own very different treatment?

~Franz Schubert

I never force myself to be devout except when I feel so inspired, and never compose hymns of prayers unless I feel within me real and true devotion.

~Franz Schubert

No one feels another's grief.

~Franz Schubert

Our castle is not imposing, but is well built, and surrounded by a very fine garden. I live in the bailiff's house.

~Franz Schubert

Approval or blame will follow in the world to come.

~Franz Schubert

What a picture of a better world you have given us, Mozart!
