By the cross we, too, are crucified with Christ; but alive in Christ. We are no more rebels, but servants; no more servants, but sons!

~Frederic Farrar

Although a friend may remain faithful in misfortune, yet none but the very best and loftiest will remain faithful to us after our errors and our sins.

~Frederic Farrar

If we would see the color of our future, we must look for it in our present; if we would gaze on the star of our destiny, we must look for it in our hearts.

~Frederic Farrar

It is easy to be a slave to the letter, and difficult to enter into the spirit; easy to obey a number of outward rules, difficult to enter intelligently and self-sacrificingly into the will of God.

~Frederic Farrar

Man's liberty ends, and it ought to end, when that liberty becomes the curse of its neighbors.

~Frederic Farrar

No man can pass into eternity, for he is already in it.

~Frederic Farrar

If ever I want to amuse myself with an idiot, I have not far to look for one. I laugh at myself.

~Frederic Farrar

There was living in the palace at this time a brother of the great Germanicus, and consequently an uncle of the late emperor, whose name was Claudius Caesar.

~Frederic Farrar

The decision of such judges as Claudius and his Senate is worth very little in the question of a man's innocence or guilt; but the sentence was that Seneca should be banished to the island of Corsica.

~Frederic Farrar

But in the life of every man there are influences of a far more real and penetrating character than those which come through the medium of schools or teachers.

~Frederic Farrar

For although Claudius had been accused of gambling and drunkenness, not only were no worse sins laid to his charge, but he had successfully established some claim to being considered a learned man.

~Frederic Farrar

The address 'Woman' was so respectful that it might be, and was, addressed to the queenliest.

~Frederic Farrar

If miracles be incredible, Christianity is false. If Christ wrought no miracles, then the Gospels are untrustworthy.

~Frederic Farrar

The knowledge of evil tempteth to its commission.

~Frederic Farrar

Seneca brings vividly before us a picture of the various scholars assembled in a school of the philosophers.

~Frederic Farrar

The following sentiments are illustrative of the philosophy of the Talmud: "Love peace and pursue it at any cost."
