I'm grateful for all the attention because it validates I'm doing something.

~Gale Harold

Don't forget who your heroes are, what they mean to you, and why they mean that to you.

~Gale Harold

Some say that Jesus is the rock, or the anchor. I say that your friends and family are your anchor. And you can REALLY hold their hands, not just sing about it. No disrespect to George Jones.

~Gale Harold

I started studying at 26. Before that, I never thought of acting as something that I would ever try.

~Gale Harold

One cannot deny that if a person has the energy to get you interested and excited, then that is half the battle won, like all the great leaders had this quality.

~Gale Harold

Criticism is a surreal state, like a good drug gone bad. When it's bad you wish it would stop, and when it's good, you can't get enough.

~Gale Harold

I've learned the most from Randy Harrison. Because of his fantastic imaginary world filled with bizarre friends. He is constantly giving us good advice.

~Gale Harold

No apologies, no regrets.

~Gale Harold

If someone doesn't want to work with me because I'm playing a gay character, I don't want to work with them. They can fck off.

~Gale Harold

You have to like your character, because if you don't, no one else will either.

~Gale Harold

My interests are not really with television, per se.

~Gale Harold

After I began to explore what an actor actually is, I studied for three years before I had the guts to go on an audition.
