I spend a year at the Hoover Institute at Stanford, researching market approaches to air pollution control.

~Gale Norton

Growing up in Denver, I'm sure it started with loving the Colorado mountains.

~Gale Norton

We also know that China and India, as their economies ramp up, are using more and more energy.

~Gale Norton

Why has it seemed that the only way to protect the environment is with heavy-handed government regulation?

~Gale Norton

What's near and dear to my heart is cooperative conservation.

~Gale Norton

Local innovation and initiative can help us better understand how to protect our environment.

~Gale Norton

I think today we recognize that economic activity needs to search for ways to protect the environment.

~Gale Norton

I started out as a Democrat.

~Gale Norton

Predators make it much more difficult to find consensus. It's a lot easier to agree about birds and plants than about animals that endanger people and livestock.

~Gale Norton

My schedulers keep getting driven crazy by the fact that they can't fit hikes in my schedule.

~Gale Norton

In Washington, there's always an effort to label people.

~Gale Norton

I think the greatest challenge in environmentalism and the most rewarding challenge is trying to figure out how humans can meet their needs while protecting the environment.

~Gale Norton

Human beings are going to be relying on natural resources for a long time.

~Gale Norton

Dating back to Teddy Roosevelt, hunters have been the pillar of conservation in America, doing more than anyone to conserve wildlife and its habitat.

~Gale Norton

I was a little too young to be a hippie.

~Gale Norton

I believe strongly that we need to get beyond rhetoric, beyond industry and environmentalists fighting with each other, and seriously solve problems.

~Gale Norton

Dense overgrown forests and rangelands have grown like a cancer. They need to be treated.
