If the great Government of the United States were a private corporation no bank would take its name on a piece of paper, because it has cynically repudiated the words engraved upon its bonds.

~Garet Garrett

Business is in itself a power.

~Garet Garrett

Revolution in the modern case is no longer an uncouth business.

~Garet Garrett

The New Deals enmity for that system of free and competitive private enterprise which we call capitalism was fundamental.

~Garet Garrett

The idea of imposing universal peace on the world by force is a barbarian fantasy.

~Garet Garrett

Formerly government was the responsibility of people; now people were the responsibility of government.

~Garet Garrett

Loyalty of the law-making power to the executive power was one of the dangers the political fathers foretold.

~Garet Garrett

It is the function of the President, representing the executive principle, to execute the laws.

~Garet Garrett

You do not defend a world that is already lost.

~Garet Garrett

Between government in the republican meaning, that is, Constitutional, representative, limited government, on the one hand, and Empire on the other hand, there is mortal enmity.

~Garet Garrett

Is it security you want? There is no security at the top of the world.

~Garet Garrett

The New Deal was going to redistribute the national income according to ideals of social and economic justice.

~Garet Garrett

The winds that blow our billions away return burdened with themes of scorn and dispraise.

~Garet Garrett

There is in government a living impulse to extend itself indefinitely; and there is in freedom a necessity to resist that impulse.

~Garet Garrett

Government is the natural enemy of freedom.

~Garet Garrett

Well, where there is freedom doubt itself must be free.

~Garet Garrett

Lenin, the greatest theorist of them all, did not know what he was going to do after he had got the power.

~Garet Garrett

If people cannot limit government they will not for long be free.

~Garet Garrett

With no notice to the American people...this country entered the war...Stranger than the fact was the passive acceptance of it.

~Garet Garrett

If you put a ten dollar bill under the rug instead of spending it, that is capital formation. It represents ten dollars' worth of something that might have been immediately consumed, but wasn't.

~Garet Garrett

To the revolutionary mind the American vista must have been almost as incredible as Genghis Khan's first view of China - so rich, so soft, so unaware.

~Garet Garrett

This is the problem for which revolutionary theory has yet to find the right solution, if there is one. The difficulty is that the economic interests of the two classes are antagonistic.
