I think we typically, as Northerners, stereotype what the South is in so many negative ways. We kind of forget all the beautiful things that they contribute to make this country a country.

~Genevieve Gorder

I think that, in comparison, New Yorkers and Northerners are so guarded.

Design can have such a positive impact on the way people live and on their relationships and moods.

~Genevieve Gorder

So, to really execute design in its highest form and making people feel joy, that's a great reward.

The hardest part of the show is saying goodbye when it's all done. It really breaks you.

~Genevieve Gorder

You need to have a home to go back to, whether it's a hotel room or a barn. It's only home when he's there.

~Genevieve Gorder

Oprah has this intense curiosity that I haven't found with any interviewer.

~Genevieve Gorder

I'm opening a store at the end of the month in the New York meatpacking district. I'm launching a line of bedding this summer, and I am writing a book that will be out next January.

~Genevieve Gorder

That was always my frustration with so many of these shows, because design is not an ambush... it's a relationship. You have to know how people move and live and work to be able to design for them.

~Genevieve Gorder

It's about the power of design and the power of the human spirit. It's above paying anybody to do something stupid for money like reality television does - like ambushing people.

~Genevieve Gorder

I will not do work that isn't done well or right. Stuff happens - things break, contractors don't come through - but I don't want to be responsible for not doing something correctly.

~Genevieve Gorder

Like I said, TLC has enough of my life. I have to keep some of it for myself.

~Genevieve Gorder

I'm so used to talk-show hosts just giving you a sound bite and not really being interested.

~Genevieve Gorder

That's my job. To imagine harder than you can.

~Genevieve Gorder

But instead of that stuff you get relationships with people and neighbors that you would never get in a city. People in small towns are a lot more open.

~Genevieve Gorder

There's a big difference between decorators and designers and the training is very different.

~Genevieve Gorder

The birth of any show is always a rough one.

~Genevieve Gorder

When East meets West, amazing design happens. L'Alahambra rug is a marriage of the clean line and simplicity of Western graphic design meets the complexity and beauty of Eastern pattern.

~Genevieve Gorder

I'm a designer, I love it, and I haven't worked this hard to do bad work.
