I will neither yield to the song of the siren nor the voice of the hyena,
the tears of the crocodile nor the howling of the wolf.

~George Chapman

Let no man value at a little price A virtuous woman's counsel; her winged spirit Is feathered often times with heavenly words, And, like her beauty, ravishing and pure.

~George Chapman

Flatterers look like friends, as wolves like dogs.

~George Chapman

Keep thy shop, and thy shop will keep thee. Light gains make heavy purses. 'Tis good to be merry and wise.

~George Chapman

Be free all worthy spirits, and stretch yourselves, for greatness and for height.

~George Chapman

Fair words never hurt the tongue.

~George Chapman

An Englishman, being flattered, is a lamb; threatened, a lion.

~George Chapman

The best way to accomplish something is to just do it, and then find the courage afterward.

~George Chapman

Love is Natures second sun.

~George Chapman

Young men think old men are fools, but old men know young men are fools.

~George Chapman

Promise is most given when the least is said.

~George Chapman

Let no man under value the price of a virtuous woman's counsel.

~George Chapman

He that shuns trifles must shun the world.

~George Chapman

And let a scholar all earth's volumes carry, he will be but a walking dictionary: a mere articulate clock.

~George Chapman

For one heat, all know, doth drive out another, One passion doth expel another still.

~George Chapman

I pray, what flowers are these? The pansy this, O, that's for lover's thoughts.

~George Chapman

The incompetent quickly throws himself into another impressive enterprise in order to escape his responsibility from previous disaster.

~George Chapman

Fate's such a shrewish thing.

~George Chapman

News as wholesome as the morning air.

~George Chapman

Each natural agent works but to this end,- To render that it works on like itself.

~George Chapman

Let pride go afore, shame will follow after.

~George Chapman

Danger, the spur of all great minds.

~George Chapman

An ill weed grows apace.

~George Chapman

Ignorance is the mother of admiration.

~George Chapman

Who to himself is law no law doth need; offends none and is king indeed.

~George Chapman

As night the life-inclining stars best shows, So lives obscure the starriest souls disclose.

~George Chapman

They're only truly great who are truly good.

~George Chapman

Tis immortality to die aspiring.

~George Chapman

Virtue is not malicious; wrong done her Is righted even when men grant they err.

~George Chapman

Perfect happiness, by princes sought, Is not with birth born, nor exchequers bought.

~George Chapman

We inherit nothing truly, but what our actions make us worthy of.

~George Chapman

Black is a pearl in a woman's eye.

~George Chapman

So our lives In acts exemplary, not only win Ourselves good names, but doth to others give Matter for virtuous deeds, by which we live.

~George Chapman
