It's the people who try to be clever who never are; the people who are clever never think of trying to be.

~Gilbert Parker

Love knows not distance; it hath no continent; its eyes are for the stars.

~Gilbert Parker

Imagination is at the root of much that passes for love.

~Gilbert Parker

Every man should have laws of his own, I should think; commandments of his own, for every man has a different set of circumstances wherein to work - or worry.

~Gilbert Parker

Every shot that kills ricochets.

~Gilbert Parker

In all secrets there is a kind of guilt, however beautiful or joyful they may be, or for what good end they may be set to serve. Secrecy means evasion, and evasion means a problem to the moral mind.

~Gilbert Parker

It is not the broken heart that kills, but broken pride, monseigneur.

~Gilbert Parker

War is cruelty, and none can make it gentle.

~Gilbert Parker

The real business of life is trying to understand each other.

~Gilbert Parker

She belongs to a race of delightful women, who never do any harm, whom everybody calls good, and who are very severe on those who do not pretend to be good.

~Gilbert Parker

There is no refuge from memory and remorse in this world. The spirits of our foolish deeds haunt us, with or without repentance.

~Gilbert Parker

Memory is man's greatest friend and worst enemy.

~Gilbert Parker

When a child is born the mother also is born again.

~Gilbert Parker

There's no credit in not doing what you don't want to do. There's no virtue in not falling, when you're not tempted.

~Gilbert Parker

Nothing is so unproductive as the law. It is expensive whether you win or lose.

~Gilbert Parker

There is no influence like the influence of habit.

~Gilbert Parker

That which is loved may pass, but love hath no end.

~Gilbert Parker

Tomorrow is no man's gift.

~Gilbert Parker

But paying is part of the game of life: it is the joy of buying that we crave.

~Gilbert Parker

Ah, lady, when I gave my heart to thee, It passed into thy lifelong regency.

~Gilbert Parker
