Power wears out those who don't have it

~Giulio Andreotti

I recognize my limits but when I look around I realise I am not living exactly in a world of giants.

~Giulio Andreotti

You sin in thinking bad about people - but, often, you guess right.

~Giulio Andreotti

Power tires only those who do not have it.

~Giulio Andreotti

I love Germany so much that I preferred when there were two.

~Giulio Andreotti

In church I feel very close to the publican of the parable.

~Giulio Andreotti

Apart from the Punic Wars, I've been blamed for just about everything.

~Giulio Andreotti

Power is a disease one has no desire to be cured of.

~Giulio Andreotti

In politics, sunny days and rainy days can change very quickly.

~Giulio Andreotti

I have some state secrets I will take with me to paradise.

~Giulio Andreotti

My conscience is clear, because I know that in my conscience and in front of God I am guilty of nothing. I hope human justice will see at the same way.

~Giulio Andreotti

Gladio had been necessary during the days of the Cold War but, in view of the collapse of the East Block, Italy would suggest to Nato that the organisation was no longer necessary.

~Giulio Andreotti

Clericalism: the habitual confusion between that which is of Caesar, and that of God.

~Giulio Andreotti

I should be making plans more for the next world than for this one.

~Giulio Andreotti

The judges are a big problem. Law is equal for everyone, except for them.

~Giulio Andreotti

We learn from the Gospel that when they asked Jesus what the truth was, he did not reply.
