While I don't like violent programs per se, I do like good storytelling, which made me a fan of shows like Breaking Bad and American Horror Story.

~Hank Stuever

It seems to me conspiracy is at the heart of dozens of TV dramas currently on. Maybe that itself is some kind of conspiracy.

~Hank Stuever

Never forget that I am paid for my troubles!

~Hank Stuever

I do get lots of links to advance screeners, which helps, but there's no way I could do my job without the full-on cable subscription.

~Hank Stuever

I like the anthology concept. I wish more shows would do it.

~Hank Stuever

We all have to draw some lines. To preserve my sanity, I steer clear of cooking, professional sports and most imports, unless imported to us via PBS, Sundance, etc.

~Hank Stuever

I'm not much a TV reporter, as in someone who covers the daily machinations of the television industry, though I certainly follow it and weave it into my reviews and essays about the medium.

~Hank Stuever

The fastest way to bring financial ruin upon yourself is to go for a drive in the United States without proof of insurance and current license and registration.

~Hank Stuever

One of the dirty little secrets of my job is that I don't do ANY food or cooking shows.

~Hank Stuever

I'm a fan of half-hour shows that can be both funny and dramatic.

~Hank Stuever

Jarecki's 'Reagan' is a compellingly watchable and appropriately conflicted portrait...artfully nuanced and intellectually curious.

~Hank Stuever

"Big Bang Theory" focuses on main characters who in other shows would only be auxiliary players hewing to stereotype: The gawky nerd who lives next door and says oddball things.

~Hank Stuever

I think the occasional appearance of the UFO is a very oblique pop-cultural reference that anyone who was alive and sentient in the late 1970s will get right away.

~Hank Stuever

I have to confess I can't have the holiday season without "Hard Candy Christmas". For some reason, it makes me think of the sticky ribbon candy bowl my mid-western grandma always had.

~Hank Stuever

In fact, when it comes to TV, I'm not even sure what my real, true preferences are.

~Hank Stuever

My work is very much like the restaurant critic's - a number of factors come together to make for a strong review.

~Hank Stuever

In the end, all critics should be guided by this one principle: Is this piece of work [TV show, movie, play, concert, album, restaurant] succeeding at what it set out to do?

~Hank Stuever

Just as it's unfair to review a taco stand for not being a four-star restaurant, I also have to be mindful that not every drama on TV is trying to be "The Wire."

~Hank Stuever

I'm pretty sure the world is in solid agreement that "The Wire" is worth watching all the way through.

~Hank Stuever

I don't have scientific data, but I think plenty of perfectly nice weekends are being given over to the binge craze.

~Hank Stuever

Mobster stories are always a harder sell for me. I don't romanticize organize crime the way others do, though I can be swayed.

~Hank Stuever

Whenever people ask me if it's okay to stop watching "The Leftovers," I always say OF COURSE IT IS.

~Hank Stuever

As far as my personal nostalgia zone goes, I find I watch more of AntennaTV than anything else.

~Hank Stuever

I love commercials. I love to hate commercials, too. I talk back to them.
