The truth is more important to me than anything - my personal wealth or health or any of these things. I think that it's not so difficult for me to say what I'm saying.

~Harry Lennix

People learn who they are by the images of themselves, the representations that they seek.

~Harry Lennix

If hell comes as a result of my speaking the truth, then let it come.

~Harry Lennix

Racism is a common thread among people of color, even though each experience with it is different.

~Harry Lennix

The beauty of doing a series is that, over the course of time, it's like peeling an onion. You're able to reveal these layers, more and more. You just don't want to reveal too much, too soon.

~Harry Lennix

I think that in some ways there is no more important thing in my life outside of family and God.

~Harry Lennix

I think that one thing that America is guilty of is not ever apologizing for the greatest sin of the country, which is slavery.

~Harry Lennix

I think that Hollywood is content with condescending to Black people, patronizing them, feeling sorry for us, and I think we're happy to take the pat on the head as a people and take whatever awards.

~Harry Lennix

Hollywood loves to pat itself on the back and espouse their rhetorically liberal points of view while they continue to be the 1 percent and point the finger at the other guy.

~Harry Lennix

The Black church is extremely important in Black America. I think most Americans themselves believe in a divine power, in a god, and I'm sure that that number increases with Black people.
