Twere better far That gods should quaff their nectar merrily, And men sing out the day like grasshoppers, So may they haply lull the watchful thunder.

~Hartley Coleridge

Her very frowns are fairer far Than smiles of other maidens are.

~Hartley Coleridge

The merry year is born Like the bright berry from the naked thorn.

~Hartley Coleridge

Oh, where is man That mortal god, that hath no mortal kin Or like on earth? Shall Nature's orator The interpreter of all her mystic strains Shall he be mute in Nature's jubilee?

~Hartley Coleridge

With all your music, loud and lustily, With every dainty joy of sight and smell, Prepare a banquet meet to entertain The Lord of Thunder, that hath set you free From old oppression.

~Hartley Coleridge

If we take care of the inches, we will not have to worry about the miles.

~Hartley Coleridge

Go your way. Forget Prometheus, And all the woe that he is doom'd to bear; By his own choice this vile estate preferring To ignorant bliss and unfelt slavery.

~Hartley Coleridge

Pray to be perfect, though material leaven Forbid the spirit so on earth to be; But if for any wish thou darest not pray, Then pray to God to cast that wish away.

~Hartley Coleridge

Man is more than half of nature's treasure.

~Hartley Coleridge

The soul of man is larger than the sky, Deeper than ocean, or the abysmal dark Of the unfathomed center.

~Hartley Coleridge

Be not afraid to pray--to pray is right. Pray, if thou canst, with hope; but ever pray, Though hope be weak or sick with long delay; Pray in the darkness, if there be no light.

~Hartley Coleridge

The beauty of the picture is an abiding concrete of the painter's vision.

~Hartley Coleridge

But what is Freedom? Rightly understood, A universal licence to be good.

~Hartley Coleridge

A bard whom there were none to praise, And very few to read.

~Hartley Coleridge

Is love a fancy, or a feeling?

~Hartley Coleridge

On this hapless earth There 's small sincerity of mirth, And laughter oft is but an art To drown the outcry of the heart.

~Hartley Coleridge
