Two of the cruelest, most primitive punishments our town deals out to those who have fallen from favor are the empty mailbox and the silent telephone.

~Hedda Hopper

I couldn't remember ever having seen a young man with such power, so many facets of expression, so much sheer invention as an actor.

~Hedda Hopper

You had to stand in line to hate him.

~Hedda Hopper

Lucille Ball hates the color of her hair, too, and says 'I should wear a sign on my chest saying I hate it, but Technicolor demands it.'

~Hedda Hopper

I wasn't allowed to speak while my husband was alive, and since he's gone no one has been able to shut me up.

~Hedda Hopper

I can wear a hat or take it off, but either way it's a conversation piece.

~Hedda Hopper

No matter what you say about the town, and anything you say probably is true, there's never been another like it.

~Hedda Hopper

Smart writers never understand why their satires on our town are never successful. What they refuse to accept is that you can't satirize a satire.

~Hedda Hopper

Nobody's interested in sweetness and light.

~Hedda Hopper

Hollywood was always heartbreak town, though most of the world fancied it to be Shangri-La, King Solomon's mines, and Fort Knox rolled into one big ball of 24-karat gold.

~Hedda Hopper

In Hollywood gratitude is Public Enemy Number One.

~Hedda Hopper

In this life you can take poverty, you can take failure, you can take the big things; it's the little griefs that destroy you inside.

~Hedda Hopper

I got around a lot, and lots of people talked to me. I salted down stories by the barrel load.

~Hedda Hopper

I think Lilyan (Tashman) is one of the most amusing people I know but I believe she dresses in too flamboyant a manner. Where some women wear one or two diamond clasps, she wears four!

~Hedda Hopper

The geniuses who conduct the motion-picture business killed glamour when they decided that what the public wanted was not dream stuff, from which movies used to be made, but realism.

~Hedda Hopper

Press agent - a man who hitches his braggin' to a star.

~Hedda Hopper

In singing, what my voice lacked in quality it made up in volume.

~Hedda Hopper

Ann Sothern's dressing room...was unbelievably lush and beautiful. More elegant than many homes I've been in.

~Hedda Hopper

In anger, you look ten years older.

~Hedda Hopper

Dancing came easy to me.

~Hedda Hopper

About once every six months someone notifies me that Lucy and Desi Arnaz are separating.
