The art of living easily as to money is to pitch your scale of living one degree below your means.

~Henry Taylor

He who gives only what he would as readily throw away, gives without generosity; for the essence of generosity is in self-sacrifice.

~Henry Taylor

No siren did ever so charm the ear of the listener as the listening ear has charmed the soul of the siren.

~Henry Taylor

Where there are large powers with little ambition... nature may be said to have fallen short of her purposes.

~Henry Taylor

Wisdom is corrupted by ambition, even when the quality of the ambition is intellectual. For ambition, even of this quality, is but a form of self-love.

~Henry Taylor

If you know how a man deals with his money, how he gets it, spends it, keeps it, shares it, you know one of the most important things about him.

~Henry Taylor

Of all the uses of adversity which are sweet, none are sweeter than those which grow out of disappointed love.

~Henry Taylor

There is no such test of a man's superiority of character as in the well-conducting of an unavoidable quarrel.

~Henry Taylor

When you give, therefore, take to yourself no credit for generosity, unless you deny yourself something in order that you may give.

~Henry Taylor

Fear, indeed, is the mother of foresight.

~Henry Taylor

He that lacks time to mourn, lacks time to mend: Eternity mourns that.
'Tis an ill cure For life's worst ills to have no time to feel them.

~Henry Taylor

I have not skill
From such a sharp and waspish word as "No"
To pluck the sting.

~Henry Taylor

The world knows nothing of its greatest men.

~Henry Taylor

Shy and unready men are great betrayers of secrets, for there are few wants more urgent for the moment than the want of something to say.

~Henry Taylor

His food
Was glory, which was poison to his mind
And peril to his body.

~Henry Taylor
