Happiness is a form of courage.

~Holbrook Jackson

Books worth reading are worth re-reading.

~Holbrook Jackson

Pedantry is the dotage of knowledge.

~Holbrook Jackson

Man is a dog's idea of what God should be.

~Holbrook Jackson

Genius is initiative on fire.

~Holbrook Jackson

Beware of your habits. The better they are the more surely they will be your undoing.

~Holbrook Jackson

Fear of corrupting the mind of the younger generation is the loftiest form of cowardice.

~Holbrook Jackson

Only one-fourth of the sorrow in each man's life is caused by outside uncontrollable elements, the rest is self-imposed by failing to analyze and act with calmness.

~Holbrook Jackson

Originality is only variation.

~Holbrook Jackson

There are only two classes in society: those who get more than they earn, and those who earn more than they get.

~Holbrook Jackson

Never put off till tomorrow the book you can read today.

~Holbrook Jackson

The end of reading is not more books but more life.

~Holbrook Jackson

The poor are the only consistent altruists; they sell all they have and give it to the rich.

~Holbrook Jackson

Be contented, when you have got all you want.

~Holbrook Jackson

No man is ever old enough to know better.

~Holbrook Jackson

A good book is always on tap; it may be decanted and drunk a hundred times, and it is still there for further imbibement.

~Holbrook Jackson

Intuition is reason in a hurry.

~Holbrook Jackson

Don't try to convert the elderly person; circumvent him.

~Holbrook Jackson

Forgive everybody but yourself.

~Holbrook Jackson

Those who seek happiness miss it, and those who discuss it, lack it.

~Holbrook Jackson

The newest books are those that never grow old.

~Holbrook Jackson

Your library is your portrait.

~Holbrook Jackson

People who want to be amused have lost the art of living.

~Holbrook Jackson

When in doubt, risk it

~Holbrook Jackson

We are more inclined to regret our virtues than our vices; but only the very honest will admit this.

~Holbrook Jackson

The great revolution of the future will be Nature's revolt against man.

~Holbrook Jackson

History proves there is no better advertisement for a book than to condemn it for obscenity.

~Holbrook Jackson

The time to read is any time: no apparatus, no appointment of time and place, is necessary.

~Holbrook Jackson

Your readiest desire is your path to joy... even if it destroys you.

~Holbrook Jackson

As soon as an idea is accepted it is time to reject it.

~Holbrook Jackson

Book-love, I say again, lasts throughout life, it never flags or fails, but, like Beauty itself, is a joy forever.

~Holbrook Jackson

The better the book the more room for the reader.

~Holbrook Jackson

~Holbrook Jackson

Great books conserve time.

~Holbrook Jackson

Love is the most subtle form of self-interest.

~Holbrook Jackson

Sacrifice is a form of bargaining.

~Holbrook Jackson

The possession of a great many things, even the best of things, tends to blind one to the real value of anything.

~Holbrook Jackson

Past and present, it is all the same, books are necromancers, they exercise an influence more varied, more lasting, than any magic known to man.

~Holbrook Jackson

Education begins by teaching children to read and ends by making most of them hate reading.

~Holbrook Jackson

Suffer fools gladly; they may be right.

~Holbrook Jackson

Why did Nature create man? Was it to show that she is big enough to make mistakes, or was it pure ignorance?
