I'm one of three brothers.

~Howard Gordon

Her lips were like the soft beauty of a delicately designed silken scarf.

~Howard Gordon

I'm a member of the Pacific Council on International Policy.

~Howard Gordon

I feel like a centrist, an issue-specific person. I'm pretty conservative fiscally and pretty liberal on social issues.

~Howard Gordon

I've always wanted to write a novel. It's overwhelming and daunting, and it's one of those things that every writer fantasizes about doing.

~Howard Gordon

Listening takes practice, and it takes patience. But I promise, if you listen, your story will be better for it.

~Howard Gordon

Where I came from, no one was a writer.

~Howard Gordon

In a novel, the relationship between writer and reader is such a pure one.

~Howard Gordon

In a novel, the only budgetary limitations are that of your imagination.

~Howard Gordon

I have a ways to go as a novelist. But what's great is, well, I frankly enjoyed the solitude. And I enjoyed being able to tell characters what to say and do without negotiating with an actor.

~Howard Gordon

When you're writing a novel, you're still telling a story. But you're telling it very differently. It's a craft like anything else.

~Howard Gordon

The novel remains a very special form for me.

~Howard Gordon

I guess I've always been an aspiring novelist. I went to Princeton and wrote a novel for my thesis.

~Howard Gordon

We're not allowed to carry out harsh interrogations anymore, but we're allowed to fly over somebody's village, without due process, and kill them all?

~Howard Gordon

Doing good stuff or stuff that you are proud of takes time and takes effort.
