People are scared to empty their minds fearing that they will be engulfed by the void. What they don't realize is that their own mind is the void.

~Huangbo Xiyun

The foolish reject what they see, not what they think; the wise reject what they think, not what they see.

~Huangbo Xiyun

Our original nature is...void, omnipresent, silent, pure; it is glorious and mysterious peaceful joy - and that is all. Enter deeply into it by awakening yourself.

~Huangbo Xiyun

A perception, sudden as blinking, that subject and object are one, will lead to a deeply mysterious understanding; and by this understanding you will awaken to the truth.

~Huangbo Xiyun

Why seek a doctrine? As soon as you have a doctrine, you fall into dualistic thought.

~Huangbo Xiyun

To make use of your mind to think conceptually is to leave substance and attach yourself to form

~Huangbo Xiyun

Observe things as they are and don't pay attention to other people.

~Huangbo Xiyun

Here it is - right now. Start thinking about it and you miss it.

~Huangbo Xiyun

Throughout this life, you can never be certain of living long enough to take another breath.

~Huangbo Xiyun

When thoughts arise, then do all things arise. When thoughts vanish, then do all things vanish.

~Huangbo Xiyun

By the dharma is meant the heart, for there is no dharma apart from the heart.

~Huangbo Xiyun

There exists just the One mind.

~Huangbo Xiyun

...concepts are related to the senses; and, when feeling takes place, wisdom is shut out.

~Huangbo Xiyun

All Buddhas and ordinary people are just one mind. This mind is beyond all measurements, names, oppositions: this very being is it; as soon as you stir your mind you turn away from it.

~Huangbo Xiyun

...Therefore it is said: 'The perception of a phenomenon IS the perception of the Universal Nature, since phenomena and Mind are one and the same.'
