Line dancing is as sinful as any other type of dancing, with its sexual gestures and touching. It is an incitement to lust.

~Ian Paisley

Never confuse sitting on your side with being on your side.

~Ian Paisley

I would never repudiate the fact that I am an Irishman

~Ian Paisley

Catholic homes caught fire because they were loaded with petrol bombs.

~Ian Paisley

Don't come crying to me if your homes are attacked. You will reap what you sow.

~Ian Paisley

We're on the verge of civil war in Northern Ireland. Why? Because if you take away the forums of democracy you don't have anything left.

~Ian Paisley

You can't build the bridge of trust with the scaffolding of lies and underhand deals

~Ian Paisley

I would rather be British than just.

~Ian Paisley

Come Friday, the world will see what the Protestant people really think of this so-called peace process, which is really a surrender process.

~Ian Paisley

We are not going into government with Sinn Fein.

~Ian Paisley

I have never made an inflammatory statement in my life

~Ian Paisley

I will walk on no grave of Ulster's honoured dead to do a deal with the IRA or the British government.

~Ian Paisley

Unsaturated fat is an outrage.

~Ian Paisley

A man who keeps on going; a man who keeps his eye on the ball.

~Ian Paisley

People don't expect to die tomorrow, but they do take out insurance, don't they?

~Ian Paisley

I will never sit down with Gerry Adams . . . he'd sit with anyone. He'd sit down with the devil. In fact, Adams does sit down with the devil.

~Ian Paisley

I believe that Northern Ireland has come to a time of peace, a time when hate will no longer rule.

~Ian Paisley

The gun is not out of Irish politics.

~Ian Paisley

It was amazing that I was ever elected.
