Religion hinges upon faith, politics hinges upon who can tell the most convincing lies or maybe just shout the loudest, but science hinges upon whether its conclusions resemble what actually happens.

~Ian Stewart

If our brains were simple enough for us to understand them, we'd be so simple that we couldn't.

~Ian Stewart

There are 10 kinds of people in the world: those who understand binary numerals, and those who don't.

~Ian Stewart

Mathematics is the science of patterns, and nature exploits just about every pattern that there is.

~Ian Stewart

Chaos is lawless behavior governed entirely by law.

~Ian Stewart

First is first, and second is nowhere.

~Ian Stewart

During the past fifty years, more mathematics has been created than in all previous ages put together.
