The woman who makes a sweet, beautiful home, filling it with love and prayer and purity, is doing something better than anything else her hands could find to do beneath the skies.

~J.R. Miller

The only thing that walks back from the tomb with the mourners and refuses to be buried is the character of a man. This is true. What a man is, survives him. It can never be buried.

~J.R. Miller

The only business in the world bigger than gambling is religion...but gambling is not nearly so corrupt.

~J.R. Miller

Nothing else in all life is such a maker of joy and cheer as the privilege of doing good.

~J.R. Miller

The all-victorious Christ is like a great rock in a weary land, to whose shelter we may flee in every time of sorrow or trial, finding quiet refuge and peace in him.

~J.R. Miller

Success depends upon staying power. The reason for failure in most cases is lack of perseverance.

~J.R. Miller

This world is not a place merely to live in, nor a place in which to do certain kinds of business; it is a great workshop in which to make godly men.

~J.R. Miller

Thanksgiving is nothing if not a glad and reverent lifting of the heart to God in honor and praise for His goodness.

~J.R. Miller

We ought not to have to wait for sorrow before we can appreciate the sweetness of joy.

~J.R. Miller

Every moment brings us some benediction. Even the rough hand of trial holds in its clasp for us some treasure of love.

~J.R. Miller

Nothing does so much to help those who suffer as to know that somebody cares.

~J.R. Miller

We have a mission to others--to add to their cheer. This we cannot do unless we have first learned the lesson of cheerfulness ourselves.

~J.R. Miller

A woman whose heart is not touched by the sickness of sorrow and whose hands do not go out in relief where it is in her power to help, lacks one of the elements which make the glory of womanhood.

~J.R. Miller

Too many of us never understand what we owe to our dear ones until there remains no further opportunity of paying love's debt.
