I don't regret the decisions or direction I've chosen, but I feel it's important to be self aware.

~Jacob Bannon

Time is always fleeting and the lunar phases represent that visually for me. What people take away from that and how they apply it within their own lives, that's entirely up to them.

~Jacob Bannon

I feel that bands can do whatever they want, after all, they own themselves and the art/music they create.

~Jacob Bannon

I feel that people who are new to punk/hardcore don't truly understand the music and the role it plays in people's lives until they experience the environment for themselves.

~Jacob Bannon

I've never been a fan of bands that go out and celebrate their age, I'd rather be celebrated for being relevant.

~Jacob Bannon

Genres aren't that relevant. Nearly every form of music is a melting pot of things of things.

~Jacob Bannon

As a writer, I never paid much attention to the length of titles. I've just wanted them to communicate the emotional overtones of the content of a record or song that they are describing

~Jacob Bannon

I feel that people spend as much time skipping songs as they do listening to them in their library.

~Jacob Bannon

Everyday that passes I am pulled from youth as how it has been defined by that culture into something else.

~Jacob Bannon

For me, hardcore is simply unapologetic music, free of rules. By that definition, we are a hardcore band.

~Jacob Bannon

Though a song may race by in a minute and a half, every aspect of it is calculated and intentional.

~Jacob Bannon

What I've witnessed, managers are divisive and allow musicians to become clouded, irresponsible, and unaware of the world around them.
