

Jacob M. Appel

Quotes

People, Sex, Giving, Cancer, Ifs, Country, Worry, Spices, Lying, Medical, Persons, Use, Knowing, Long, Clean Underwear, Asking, Mean, Challenges, Abortion, Dolls

Catholic extremism should be resisted as fiercely at home as we oppose the Taliban abroad.

~Jacob M. Appel

If God wanted teenagers to be abstinent, puberty would begin at twenty.

~Jacob M. Appel

Life is nasty, brutish, and short. Death is easy.

~Jacob M. Appel

Nothing sells tombstones like a Girl Scout in uniform.

~Jacob M. Appel

The boss is never your friend, even if you're sleeping with him.

~Jacob M. Appel

If you give a man a hammer, he thinks he can solve all problems by pounding. Well, God gave men penises.

~Jacob M. Appel

Choose old people for enemies. They die. You win.

~Jacob M. Appel

Be optimistic. Always put on clean underwear if you're going on a date.

~Jacob M. Appel

Even a poor tour guide is entitled to some happiness.

~Jacob M. Appel

Never make enemies of anyone younger or healthier than you are. They write your history.

~Jacob M. Appel

Nothing spices up one's sex life like having a partner.

~Jacob M. Appel

Patriotism is being convinced your country is better because you were born in it.

~Jacob M. Appel

Most people are far more concerned that they can control their own bodies than they are about petitioning Congress.

~Jacob M. Appel

A free society, to be truly worthy of that name, owes healthy, competent individuals the right to end their lives on their own terms.

~Jacob M. Appel

There is a fundamental difference, however, between asking to be permitted to keep a vegetative relative on costly machinery, and asking the taxpayers or society as a whole to pay for such machinery.

~Jacob M. Appel

I am grateful that I have rights in the proverbial public square - but, as a practical matter, my most cherished rights are those that I possess in my bedroom and hospital room and death chamber.

~Jacob M. Appel

The only thing more difficult than persuading someone else to start having sex with you is persuading yourself to stop.

~Jacob M. Appel

Such is the demographic paradox of a junior physician's relationship with his patients: I worry about how to extend their lives. This anxiety inevitably shortens my own.

~Jacob M. Appel

A century ago, people laughed at the notion that we were descended from monkeys. Today, the individuals most offended by that claim are the monkeys.

~Jacob M. Appel

I can handle being married for my money; it's being married for my life insurance that gives me pause.

~Jacob M. Appel

I used to dream of true love; now I'm open to false, but convincing.

~Jacob M. Appel

This is how most stories end in the hospital. Not with crash carts and sirens and electric shocks to the chest, but with an empty room, a crisp white bed, silence.

~Jacob M. Appel

If freedom means anything at all, it is the right to primacy in regard to sexuality, reproduction, medical care and death.

~Jacob M. Appel

Always warm up the audience with a joke....If you are not a particularly funny person, make sure that you inform them that it's a joke.

~Jacob M. Appel

I would prefer to believe that a market in fetal organs would empower women to use their reproductive capabilities to their own economic advantage.

~Jacob M. Appel

Related Links:

- People Quotes
- Sex Quotes
- Giving Quotes
- Cancer Quotes
- Ifs Quotes
- Country Quotes
- Worry Quotes
- Spices Quotes
- Lying Quotes
- Medical Quotes
- Persons Quotes
- Use Quotes
- Knowing Quotes
- Long Quotes
- Clean Underwear Quotes
- Asking Quotes
- Mean Quotes
- Challenges Quotes
- Abortion Quotes
- Dolls Quotes