Bruges is a beautiful medieval city almost untouched by time. If you like jazz, you will be well catered for. If you like chocolate and beer, you will be in heaven.

~James Frain

As movies and TV projects come up, they go out to the agents and we just go out and audition for them.

~James Frain

The Buccaneers was an Edith Wharton novel, and she never finished it, and a screenwriter adapted it for television.

~James Frain

Acting isn't something that I think about very consciously, somehow that just doesn't work for me. I just kind of feel my way into it.

~James Frain

The acting in Downton Abbey has been consistently excellent across the board.

~James Frain

Forney in Where the Heart Is has more fans than any other character I've played.

~James Frain

X-Files wasn't a big show in England.

~James Frain

The problem with trying to make a film good and have it work for an audience is the problem of trying to tell a story well. The shape or the color of it doesn't matter.

~James Frain

Every project has its things to be overcome, but I didn't find that there was anything particularly impossible about what we were doing - it was all quite exciting.

~James Frain

Working with CGI is more like doing theater where your sort of imagining things. I didn't experience it as restrictive.
