The result, therefore, of this physical enquiry is that we find no vestige of a beginning, no prospect of an end.

~James Hutton

There is no vestige of a beginning, no prospect of an end.

~James Hutton

[It] is the little causes, long continued, which are considered as bringing about the greatest changes of the earth.

~James Hutton

In matters of science, curiosity gratified begets not indolence, but new desires.

~James Hutton

The globe of this earth is [is] not just a machine but also a organised body as it has a regenerative power.

~James Hutton

Error, never can be consistent, nor can truth fail of having support from the accurate examination of every circumstance.

~James Hutton

With such wisdom has nature ordered things in the economy of this world, that the destruction of one continent is not brought about without the renovation of the earth in the production of another.
