What am I hanging around for? But I'm hanging around because it's still fun.

~James Toback

The idea that there aren't mistakes made constantly in the judicial system is too obvious even to need to mention.

~James Toback

The past is history, the future's a mystery.

~James Toback

It's hard to give a dramatic shape to even the most dramatic life. . . . you are forced not just into selectivity, but into alteration, distortion and outright lying about what did and didn't happen.

~James Toback

I alternate between feeling incredibly lucky that I've gotten away with almost everything I wanted to do, and feeling like I've been shafted.

~James Toback

You will never convince anyone to do anything unless you believe it should be done.

~James Toback

Most of my movies get about a third raves, a third vicious attacks, and a third in-between.

~James Toback

Some people get married and they remain "I," some get married and become "we."

~James Toback

To have six billion people on Earth, two billion of whom are carrying around a warped view of you? That has to register.

~James Toback

Much as I like getting awards in Oldenburg, Germany and Torino, it's nice to get one in America.

~James Toback

Death is a part of life, and eventually I assimilated that completely.

~James Toback

I feel like Alain Delon, who once said, "It doesn't matter that I'm not a star in America because I'm a huge star in France, I'm a legend in Spain, and I'm a god in Japan.

~James Toback
