Nothing in this world happens without a reason. That we are all exactly where we are supposed to be, and that the pieces of the puzzle have a tendency to come together when you least expect it.

~Jane Green

Life, Steffi has learned, carries on around the pain, making room for it, absorbing it until it becomes part of the daily fabric, wrapping itself around you and lodging itself in your heart.

~Jane Green

You are the best person I've met in years, and if I'd met you in a year's time, or maybe even a few months, I know we could be happy together, but I can't give you what you need.

~Jane Green

Fantasies are absolutely safe, as long as you never try to make them a reality.

~Jane Green

I think relationships are very difficult. It's very easy to get swept away with excitement, glamour, and passion. I think the trick is to look for friendship rather than passion.

~Jane Green

Anyone can live in a house, but homes are created with patience, time and love.

~Jane Green

And then there was him, the long and painful love of her life.

~Jane Green

As Carrie Fisher once said in a film, everyone thinks they have good taste and a sense of humour.

~Jane Green

It's about thinking that being blonde and slim and perfect will automatically bring you happiness, and then discovering that life is full of as many disappointments as there were before.

~Jane Green

Every time my dreams threaten to become reality, something always happens and I end up alone.

~Jane Green

Whether you are inspired or not, the only way to unlock your creativity, is to start writing.
