Peacocks have the bright feathers. Fish have the long tails. Women have the mall.

~Janette Rallison

Happy is entirely up to you and always has been.

~Janette Rallison

The key to happiness - as any good fairy godmother will tell you - is not to avoid problems, but to overcome them.

~Janette Rallison

What was God thinking when he created a guy this handsome? He wasn't a gift to womankind, he was a torture device.

~Janette Rallison

Sometimes love not only lifts you to the ceiling, it also keeps your eyes there.

~Janette Rallison

I don't care what you Yanks say, cheese should not whiz.

~Janette Rallison

Beauty has a persuasive power all its own.

~Janette Rallison

Many perfumes promise to lure men to women. None of them smell of motherhood. None of them proclaim the wearer to be tidy, thrifty, and sensible.

~Janette Rallison

Perhaps selling your children, your future, just happened one bad decision at a time.

~Janette Rallison

The only things you can truly love after such a short time are ice cream flavors and comfortable shoes.

~Janette Rallison

You need to be more careful, or you could hurt yourself.

~Janette Rallison

I didn't bother to explain about the glitter in my hair. I figured they could think it was a family trait. We all glittered, just like the Cullens in Twilight.

~Janette Rallison

People weren't firecrackers who burst into the night sky with brilliance and glory, and a moment later faded away to nothing. Our souls had to be more lasting than that.

~Janette Rallison

Misfortune and Fortune are eerily similar, but Fortune is a better dresser and more fun at parties.

~Janette Rallison

"Women," he said in disgust. I wasn't sure whether we was referring to me or nuns.

~Janette Rallison

I suppose you could pass for a starlet. You do have that femme fatale air about you. Like you crush boys' dreams in your spare time.

~Janette Rallison

It's not like most people read anymore. Well, not unless the book has a wizard school or a hot vampire. And, as a Kari Kingsley expert, I'm absolutely certain your life has neither of those things.

~Janette Rallison

Adults are constantly telling teenagers that it's what's on the inside that matters. It's always painful to find out that adults have lied to you.

~Janette Rallison

Even the plants in Arizona wanted to hurt you.

~Janette Rallison

New York is a nice place." "If you like concrete, crowds, and that claustrophobic, closed-in feeling.

~Janette Rallison

Wishes are powerful things. You can't expect them to change the world without changing you too.

~Janette Rallison

The only wishes that will ever change you are the kind that may, at any moment, eat you whole.

~Janette Rallison

Fairy's side note: Even people who don't believe in magic really do.

~Janette Rallison

Very often the lessons you learn are more important than the things you accomplish

~Janette Rallison

...and her dreams that didn't happen, that couldn't have happened because she'd pinned them on somebody too broken and unattainable to love her back.

~Janette Rallison

Things that are easily done are often much harder to undo. Sometimes, impossible.

~Janette Rallison

That's the magic of books. They're never quite the same for any two people. When you read one, you automatically make it your own.

~Janette Rallison

You can always tell how a man will treat his wife by the way he treats his mother.

~Janette Rallison

Guys can smell desperation. It triggers an instinct in them to run far and fast so they aren't around when a woman starts peeling apart her heart.

~Janette Rallison

Courage is a fickle creature. Just as you need it, it often makes excuses and rushes out of the room.

~Janette Rallison

Perhaps I wasn't going crazy after all. Perhaps I was just becoming a writer.

~Janette Rallison

Blackmailers never explain their thinking. They're like pirates that way. Dark-hearted, dangerous--- and cool like Johnny Depp.

~Janette Rallison

Happy people are rarely interesting.

~Janette Rallison

Don't just read words,' he would tell her as he held up the latest story, 'devour them. Let the words create new worlds.

~Janette Rallison

Well you can't believe everything you read. After all, by definition, fiction writers lie for a living.

~Janette Rallison

As if finding a guy to solve your problems isn't a contradiction of terms.

~Janette Rallison

Like Robin Hood....Not real, but true.

~Janette Rallison

You know, sometimes you've got to trust the people you love. You've got to trust that if they're good people, they'll make good decisions.

~Janette Rallison

The next level. As though dating were a computer game.

~Janette Rallison

That's the thing about the internet. It's really good at giving you pointless facts like how many horses a star owns, but not important things like how to invade his trailer.

~Janette Rallison

Aren't fairy godmothers supposed to be nice and make you feel better about yourself? ...No, you're confusing fairy godmothers with sales clerks.

~Janette Rallison

At first it upset me to realize how many people are, at heart, selfish. Now I take that in stride, but people's loneliness still gets to me.

~Janette Rallison

The problem was that I'd never worn a bikini before. My dad doesn't allow them. He thinks even one-pieces show too much skin and constantly suggests that Jane and I wear wet suits.

~Janette Rallison

No wonder he has such nice teeth. They probably pay him in dental floss.
