The greatest directors are the greatest users. They use people's talents to tell the story that they want to tell.

~Janusz Kaminski

It's great to be recognized for work, and the work is great, but once you have the awards, it becomes less important. It just gives you the ability to do better work, in my opinion.

~Janusz Kaminski

Very few people make exterior movies anymore. It's always action films driven by action and quick editing.

~Janusz Kaminski

There are films that are difficult. There are films that would actually affect your personal life because of the length of the production, how long [you're away] from the family.

~Janusz Kaminski

If you take away 'Schindler's List' and 'Saving Private Ryan', I like 'Minority Report' a lot.

~Janusz Kaminski

I had very little involvement with 'TinTin'. Very little involvement. So I can't really elaborate on that either.

~Janusz Kaminski

["War Horse"] does have action as well, but we allow the audience to appreciate the environment where these characters are from because the lens shapes the people, as we know.

~Janusz Kaminski

It would be horrible to be micro-managed! I don't think directors can really micro-manage people. It's just impossible.

~Janusz Kaminski

We have not looked at any particular movies [in creating War Horse], but again, it's hard not to see the similarities between those movies [because of those filmmakers' influence on the industry].

~Janusz Kaminski

It's very hard to go to Monument Valley and not think of John Ford's films.

~Janusz Kaminski

['American Dream' will be released] probably never. Never in the United States because there's no room for independent cinema.

~Janusz Kaminski

[I] love 'Munich', man. That's a very underappreciated film.

~Janusz Kaminski

'Sugarland Express' was pretty amazing.

~Janusz Kaminski

I just directed another picture called 'American Dream' with Nick Stahl. Just finished shooting principal photography right before I started ['Lincoln'].

~Janusz Kaminski

Really fantastic film, 'Munich'. So yeah, if I would say, what's the most underappreciated film, I think 'Munich' would be the one.

~Janusz Kaminski

'American Dream' is a small little movie made for under a million dollars. Totally independent feature.
