All knowledge that is not the real product of observation, or of consequences deduced from observation, is entirely groundless and illusory.

~Jean-Baptiste Lamarck

It is not enough to discover and prove a useful truth previously unknown, but that it is necessary also to be able to propagate it and get it recognized.

~Jean-Baptiste Lamarck

The form follows the function.

~Jean-Baptiste Lamarck

What nature does in the course of long periods we do every day when we suddenly change the environment in which some species of living plant is situated.

~Jean-Baptiste Lamarck

Habits form a second nature.

~Jean-Baptiste Lamarck

It is not always the magnitude of the differences observed between species that must determine specific distinctions, but the constant preservation of those differences in reproduction.

~Jean-Baptiste Lamarck
