Adolescence isn't just about prom or wearing sparkly dresses.

~Jena Malone

If we could all just laugh at ourselves, in hard times or good times, it would be an incredible world.

~Jena Malone

There is a point in every young person's life when you realize that the youth that you've progressed through and graduate to some sort of adulthood is equally as messed up as where you're going.

~Jena Malone

Belief is such a powerful thing - but because it is, it can also be very destructive and it's very easily manipulated.

~Jena Malone

Advice is such a tricky thing when you're young.

~Jena Malone

Some locations are so terrible, you can't even breathe, and you still have to act.

~Jena Malone

For a child actor, its a matter of listening, reacting, and being able to put yourself in a new place without being scared.

~Jena Malone

In L.A., if you're an actor, your personal and professional lives are too intertwined.

~Jena Malone

A Christian high school is just like any other high school in the sense of the politics and all of these levels of who's cool and what to wear.

~Jena Malone

When I'm not working, I definitely I like waking up at noon.

~Jena Malone

I think everyone should follow their instincts, and go with what they feel, and follow their heart.

~Jena Malone

I think it's an individual thing. Your mountains are my molehills.

~Jena Malone

But I've really learned you don't have to fit in. No matter where you go, you're always going to be you and if they don't like you for who you are, then what's the point of being someone else?

~Jena Malone

I used to want to be a children's writer, because I would have all these great ideas when I was little, and I'd write them and draw them, and turn them into class.

~Jena Malone

If you put the right things into the universe, the right things will come to you.

~Jena Malone

I think the older you get, you start to break down the myth and you get to the dirt of it - and if you still love the dirt, then I think you should stay on board.

~Jena Malone

I think sleep's really important. I value it as much as waking up and having a full day.

~Jena Malone

I tell my agent that I want to read everything.

~Jena Malone

And I love writing; I've been writing ever since I was seven.

~Jena Malone

I love talking about movies that mean something to me.

~Jena Malone

People soften by the forced reflection that comes with loss.

~Jena Malone

It's very easy to make certain decisions that affect your life that you have no perspective on.

~Jena Malone

We are all searching for some form of family or foundation - for a place we can feel safe and secure.

~Jena Malone

No matter who the characters are, you can strip them down and find small universal truths.
