When you grow up as the daughters of George and Laura Bush, you develop a special appreciation for how blessed we are to live in this great country.

~Jenna Bush

My dad saw my husband's boss at a conference, and he said to stop paying my husband until we produce children.

~Jenna Bush

As a teacher you can see the difference in kids who have parents who were involved. That difference, by the time these kids get to the third grade, is drastic.

~Jenna Bush

I'm aware that not all kids can pick up and fly to Panama. I'm very lucky.

~Jenna Bush

I can't wish I weren't something that I am.

~Jenna Bush

I don't have any children. I just have a cat, to my parents' dismay.

~Jenna Bush

I'm just not political. I have opinions, but there's nothing about the process that has ever interested me. I'm 22, and this is the first interview I've ever done in my life.

~Jenna Bush

I didn't go to Latin America thinking, 'I'm gonna write a book. This is what I'm gonna do.' I went there to work for UNICEF and to learn.

~Jenna Bush

My first cat was named Cowboy, after the Dallas Cowboys.

~Jenna Bush

I hope that I serve by being a teacher.

~Jenna Bush

Kids are so dynamic; if you're tired and you walk into a roomful of kids, your energy is brought up to their level.

~Jenna Bush

I care what people who know me think of me.

~Jenna Bush

There's no job that's more rewarding than being with kids. I adore it.

~Jenna Bush

Writers know - especially new writers - [that] a lot of it [creative process] is the prewriting stage, the talking, brainstorming, the narrative arc and the character sketches.

~Jenna Bush

People ask me if I ever see my father and I say yes, because he puts in the effort. He calls all the time to tell us he's proud of us.

~Jenna Bush

I was sports editor for my high school newspaper, but I think I shied away from journalism.

~Jenna Bush

I think I know a lot about campaigns.

~Jenna Bush

I don't think I'm portrayed in the media the way I really am - but then who is?

~Jenna Bush

I don't think of myself as a policy expert. I think education is the most important thing.

~Jenna Bush

I decided to go to Latin America because many of my students in Washington emigrated from this region and inspired me to learn more about their home countries.

~Jenna Bush

As I've gotten older, my mannerisms are more and more like my mom's. Also, she was an educator - she's extremely passionate about education and children. I guess I inherited that in some way.

~Jenna Bush

I had always loved to write and my mom was my editor for my school papers.

~Jenna Bush

A lot of my colleagues at school became great friends of mine.

~Jenna Bush

From my dad ... I think we have a similar sense of humor. I don't know if that's a good or bad thing, but I think he's funny!

~Jenna Bush

Most people actually think I'm more like my mom because we're interested in the same things.

~Jenna Bush

I'm living my dream job! My dream job is to be in the classroom.

~Jenna Bush

I hope to continue writing. I hope to continue teaching.

~Jenna Bush

I don't know about the world, but I know kids. And I feel like sometimes kids don't get involved because they think, what can I do? I'm just a kid. And really kids can do so much.

I think there are many ways to serve your country.

~Jenna Bush

We [work] really hard to make sure we accomplish everything we want in life, but we don't think about being the president's daughter; we don't think about that, really.

I hope to focus on what I'm passionate about because I think I'd do them best job on them - education, urban education, women and children's issues and literacy.

I hope to work with kids any way possible.

~Jenna Bush

~Jenna Bush

I'm a perfectionist - I could rewrite forever.

~Jenna Bush

I think I've become more like my mom just because of what we're both interested in, children and teaching and writing.

~Jenna Bush

[My mom] had always wanted to write a children's book. She was a children's librarian and an elementary school teacher, so of course she loves children and children's literature.

~Jenna Bush

I'm more like my father, personality-wise. But my mom and I get along really well, obviously, because my mom and my dad get along so well.

~Jenna Bush

Luckily I've had a lot of great friends that I've had for a long time.

~Jenna Bush

I'm not the perfect bride after all.
