Are you outside or inside the work? You don't really know.

~Jeppé Hein

My family life mirrors why I am the person I am.

~Jeppé Hein

If you're creating a smile in yourself and also giving it to someone else, then you've started a dialogue. You also start to play.

~Jeppé Hein

We don't understand each other. That's why there are so many bad things happening; a lot of it has to do with not understanding.

~Jeppé Hein

When you have children, you start to play with them and you mirror yourself. You see your parents in yourself. It's all about mirroring.

~Jeppé Hein

When you have children it wakes up the child in you.

~Jeppé Hein

I don't need to be everywhere because my art pieces can talk for themselves.

~Jeppé Hein

I think that this media online stuff makes us all sick. We think we have to be online all the time.

~Jeppé Hein

I'm not politically active, but I'm saying [that] you can open up people's understanding of themselves and others with play.

~Jeppé Hein

I think that when something ends there's something new starting.

~Jepppe Hein

Of course it's nice to be connected, but the nicest thing, I think, is someone you can look in the eye and talk to.

~Jepppe Hein

We're in a society, I think, where everyone thinks it's so cool to work, it's so cool to be online, so cool to be super busy. I think it's super cool not to be busy.

~Jepppe Hein

If it's not good, it's not the end.

~Jepppe Hein

I think what we need is to understand each other much more, especially with the whole world right now.

~Jepppe Hein

When you start to get influenced by your family, you feel love for someone else and your heart starts to move away from yourself.

~Jepppe Hein

I was looking for acceptance, love, and that's why I became present in everything I did.

~Jepppe Hein

I've become much more spiritual and use a lot of energy to try and keep the balance.
