That's the thing about a great book. Every time you read it, it's different, because you're different. You've changed since the last time you picked it up, things have happened to you.

~Jessica Zafra

Why should I bring happiness to those I loathe by obliterating myself, when I can make them miserable just by existing?

~Jessica Zafra

We have no control over fate and history, but we can control how we conduct ourselves in this life.

~Jessica Zafra

That's really what the mall is all about: money. At the mall the rule is: Credito, ergo sum - I shop, therefore I am.

~Jessica Zafra

We are all the same in that we all want to be different.

~Jessica Zafra

Whining is a form of manipulation. People will give anything to make you shut up.

~Jessica Zafra

We often reward mediocrity because it is comforting. If they can do it, anyone can do it.

~Jessica Zafra

In relationships it is best to assume nothing.

~Jessica Zafra

My Macbook is my new boyfriend, except that he's dependable and meets all my demands.

~Jessica Zafra

You can not make someone love you. You can not be thin enough or white enough or famous enough. The choice is entirely the other person's. Then again, you might try hypnosis.

~Jessica Zafra

Yes, it's true that you can't learn everything from books. But you do learn something about everything.

~Jessica Zafra

Beware of those who have never been bored, depressed, or angry. There is something seriously wrong with them.

~Jessica Zafra

To live intensely is a basic human necessity.

~Jessica Zafra

Screw us once, shame on them; screw us twice, shame on us.

~Jessica Zafra

Never, ever point out that a woman is eating too much.

~Jessica Zafra

While being madly in love is fun, perhaps one should aspire to be sanely in love.

~Jessica Zafra

We read because we are essentially alone.

~Jessica Zafra

Life is a series of random collisions.

~Jessica Zafra

What we call the wisdom that comes with age is usually simple caution.

~Jessica Zafra

If you are honest with yourself, your life will be so much more pleasant.

~Jessica Zafra

The reason men rule is because women let them.

~Jessica Zafra

Someday you will look back on all the awful stuff that's happening to you, and fondly smile. Doesn't say much about the future, does it?

~Jessica Zafra

Once you've read too many trashy best-sellers, you begin to look for something with substance, something that attempts to define the universe.

~Jessica Zafra

We don't really have a movie industry; we have a trailer industry. The movie guys make five minutes worth of stuff to get people in the theatre, and eighty-five minutes of filler.

~Jessica Zafra

The reason producers make stupid movies is because there are stupid people who will pay to see them.

~Jessica Zafra

Sometimes I wonder if, instead of falling madly in love, we should aspire to fall sanely in love. But then, what would be the point?

~Jessica Zafra

What exactly did we learn in kindergarten? Nothing we wouldn't have learned if we;d stayed home. Okay, we learned that sometimes, by the time you get to the bathroom, it's too late.

~Jessica Zafra

One of the advantages of having an imaginary boyfriend is that he exists only for you, therefore he can not be stolen. The disadvantage is that you can not introduce him to your friends.

~Jessica Zafra

What does not kill you will make you stronger and more cynical.
