

John Heywood Quotes

Men, Wise, Wisdom, Horse, Cat, Inspirational, Happiness, Long, Children, May, Giving, Care, Blind, Life, Dog, Fishes, Water, Food, Love, Summer

Nothing is impossible to a willing heart.

~John Heywood

The more the merrier.

~John Heywood

It takes nine tailors to make a man.

~John Heywood

Make hay while the sun shines.

~John Heywood

A fig for a care, a fig for a woe!

~John Heywood

All's well that ends well.

~John Heywood

Many hands make light work.

~John Heywood

It's no use closing the barn door after the horse is gone.

~John Heywood

When all candles be out, all cats be grey.

~John Heywood

A hard beginning maketh a good ending.

~John Heywood

Fieldes have eies and woods have eares.

~John Heywood

What is got over the devil's back is spent under his belly.

~John Heywood

If nothing is ventured, nothing is gained.

~John Heywood

Beggars can't be choosers.

~John Heywood

Cut your coat according to your cloth.

~John Heywood

There are none so blind as those who will not see. The most deluded people are those who choose to ignore what they already know.

~John Heywood

Went in at the one ear and out at the other.

~John Heywood

All a green willow, willow, All a green willow is my garland.

~John Heywood

One good turn asketh another.

~John Heywood

The nearer to the church, the further from God.

~John Heywood

Hit the nail on the head.

~John Heywood

Rome was not built in one day.

~John Heywood

Tell tales out of school.

~John Heywood

The moon is made of a green cheese.

~John Heywood

Beggars should be no choosers.

~John Heywood

A man may well bring a horse to water but he cannot make him drink.

~John Heywood

None so blind as those who won't see.

~John Heywood

And death makes equal the high and low.

~John Heywood

Now for good lucke, cast an old shooe after mee.

~John Heywood

When the devil drives, needs must.

~John Heywood

She is nether fish nor flesh, nor good red herring.

~John Heywood

Would ye both eat your cake and have your cake?

~John Heywood

What heart can think, or tongue express,
The harm that groweth of idleness?

~John Heywood

No man loveth his fetters, be they made of gold.

~John Heywood

Better is to bow than break.

~John Heywood

To give importance to trifling matters.

~John Heywood

Don't put the cart before the horse.

~John Heywood

It hurts not the tongue to give faire words.

~John Heywood

It had need to bee A wylie mouse that should breed in the cats eare.

~John Heywood

Would ye both eat your cake and have your cake? This is commonly misquotes as You can't have you're cake and eat it, too.

~John Heywood

Who is so deaf or so blind as is he that willfully will neither hear nor see?

~John Heywood

He makes a beggar first that first relieves him; Not us'ers make more beggars where they live Than charitable men that use to give.

~John Heywood

Never look a gift horse in the mouth.

~John Heywood

A cat may look at a king.

~John Heywood

Better is half a loaf than no bread.

~John Heywood

No man ought to looke a given horse in the mouth.

~John Heywood

So many heads so many wits.

~John Heywood

Look before you leap.

~John Heywood

Nought venture, nought have. [Nothing ventured, nothing gained.]

~John Heywood

All things on earth thus change, some up, some down; Content's a kingdom, and I wear that crown.

~John Heywood

Wedding is destiny, And hanging likewise.

~John Heywood

When the iron is hot, strike.

~John Heywood

Follow pleasure, and then will pleasure flee, Flee pleasure, and pleasure will follow thee.

~John Heywood

Children and fools cannot lie.

~John Heywood

For when I gave you an inch, you took an ell.

~John Heywood

The loss of wealth is loss of dirt, As sages in all times assert; The happy man's without a shirt.

~John Heywood

Tis not the robe or garment I affect; For who would marry with a suit of clothes?

~John Heywood

Be of comfort, and your heavy sorrow Part equally among us; storms divided, Abate their force, and with less rage are guided.

~John Heywood

I pray thee let me and my fellow have a haire of the dog that bit us last night.

~John Heywood

Let the world slide, let the world go; A fig for care, and a fig for woe! If I can't pay, why I can owe, And death makes equal the high and low.

~John Heywood

Half a loaf is better than none.

~John Heywood

The tide tarrieth no man.

~John Heywood

The wise man sayth, store is no sore.

~John Heywood

When the sun shineth, make hay.

~John Heywood

The grey mare is the better horse.

~John Heywood

When the sunne shineth, make hay.

~John Heywood

Pryde will have a fall; For pryde goeth before and shame commeth after.

~John Heywood

I know on which side my bread is buttered.

~John Heywood

Better to be happy than wise.

~John Heywood

It is good the have a hatch before the durre.

~John Heywood

It is a foul bird that filleth his own nest.

~John Heywood

There is no fool to the old fool.

~John Heywood

Thre maie a kepe counsayle, if two be away.

~John Heywood

And while I at length debate and beate the bush, There shall steppe in other men and catch the burdes.

~John Heywood

Three may keep counsel, if two be away.

~John Heywood

Though ye loue not to bye the pyg in the poke, Yet snatche ye at the poke, that the pyg is in, Not for the poke, but the pyg good chepe to wyn.

~John Heywood

Som thingis that prouoke young men to wed in haste, Show after weddyng, that hast maketh waste.

~John Heywood

Who waite for dead men shall goe long barefoote.

~John Heywood

One swallow maketh not summer.

~John Heywood

But now I see well the old proverb is true: That parish priest forgetteth that ever he was a clerk!

~John Heywood

Who is wurs shod, than the shoemakers wyfe, With shops full of shoes all hir lyfe?

~John Heywood

Be the day never so long, Evermore at last they ring to evensong.

~John Heywood

A hard beginnyng makth a good endyng.

~John Heywood

Men say, kinde will creepe where it may not goe.

~John Heywood

The greatest Clerkes be not the wisest men.

~John Heywood

To say that which is instructive and also pleasing.

~John Heywood

Feare may force a man to cast beyond the moone.

~John Heywood

This wonder (as wonders last) lasted nine daies.

~John Heywood

Hee must have a long spoone, shall eat with the devill.

~John Heywood

Good to be merie and wise.

~John Heywood

One good turne asketh another.

~John Heywood

Of a good beginning cometh a good end.

~John Heywood

A cat may looke on a King.

~John Heywood

An ill winde that bloweth no man to good.

~John Heywood

It is better to be An old man's derling than a yong man's werling.

~John Heywood

A day after the faire.

~John Heywood

Might have gone further and have fared worse.

~John Heywood

Though he love not to buy the pig in the poke.

~John Heywood

Time trieth troth in every doubt.

~John Heywood

A short horse is soone currid.

~John Heywood

Related Links:

- Men Quotes
- Wise Quotes
- Wisdom Quotes
- Horse Quotes
- Cat Quotes
- Inspirational Quotes
- Happiness Quotes
- Long Quotes
- Children Quotes
- May Quotes
- Giving Quotes
- Care Quotes
- Blind Quotes
- Life Quotes
- Dog Quotes
- Fishes Quotes
- Water Quotes
- Food Quotes
- Love Quotes
- Summer Quotes