I can't pass up a blank book when I see it in a bookstore. And I write a sentence in it, and then I put it away.

~John Larroquette

I certainly don't condemn anyone who listens to audiobooks. It seems to me that any way we get good literature in our brain is worthwhile.

~John Larroquette

I'd like to be doing quality acting in a quality role and making as many people as possible happy.

~John Larroquette

I love reading. I'm fortunate enough to have signed books by Faulkner, Steinbeck, Thomas Pynchon.

~John Larroquette

The sad fact is that the vast majority of drunks stay drunks. There's a small minority of us who reach that fork in the road where one side says 'live' and the other says 'drink'.

~John Larroquette

I've seen more convincing wigs on William Shatner.

~John Larroquette

Write more. That's the advice I would give myself.

~John Larroquette

If 50 percent of your career is not filled with failure, you're not really successful.

~John Larroquette

Be careful out there. There are things that go bump in the night. Actually, there are things that go 'Give me your wallet or I'll kill you' in the night.

~John Larroquette

I collect books, primarily first-edition 20th-century fiction.

~John Larroquette

Again, as egotistical as I am, as self-centered as I am, and as much as I love strangers idolizing me, I find it very crass to be self-promoter in a way.

~John Larroquette

You take jobs so much of the time when you don't need to necessarily work for a living, but it becomes important who you are going to work with.

~John Larroquette

I guess we all have some sort of Rubicon that we haven't crossed in our lives and we've thought about for who knows how long. And for me, it's writing.

~John Larroquette

I don't celebrate birthdays much, except for decade-wise. It's not a really big thing.

~John Larroquette

I certainly don't take life lightly. To respect the product that you're using, I think, is very important. I think it does connect you a little bit more.

~John Larroquette

The only thing I haven't done as an actor, other than Thai puppet theater somewhere, is act on a Broadway stage.

~John Larroquette

Good acting comes from finding the essence of a character.

~John Larroquette

I began my career in Los Angeles and started working fairly quickly.

~John Larroquette

The opportunity to carry water every night to James Earl Jones on stage is a dream come true.

~John Larroquette

I love working with Gary Sinise.

~John Larroquette

I don't do a lot of guest shots on television.
