Two

I just know that there are two theories when arguing with women. And neither one works.

~John Marston

Some trees flourish, others die. Some cattle grow strong, others are taken by wolves. Some men are born rich enough and dumb enough to enjoy their lives. Ain't nothing fair. You know that.

~John Marston

People don't forget. Nothing gets forgiven.

~John Marston

Looks like the good Lord got your ass and face mixed up.

~John Marston

Men are born, and then they're formed.

~John Marston

We all have problems, and we must solve them together or we die alone.

~John Marston

If you win power, remember why you wanted it.

~John Marston

We die alone, but we live among men.

~John Marston

It's wanting that gets so many folks in trouble.

~John Marston

My side ain't chosen. My side was given.

~John Marston

Through danger safety comes - through trouble rest.

~John Marston

All the fatt's in the fire.

~John Marston

Don't be too eager to grow up. It ain't as much fun as it looks

~John Marston

You couldn't shoot a fart out of your own ass!

~John Marston

Every man has a right to change, a chance of forgiveness.

~John Marston

Wink and shut their apprehensions up.

~John Marston

I'm a semi-literate farmer and hired killer. I ain't in the power game.

~John Marston

I'm many things, most of 'em bad. But a man of political principles? No.

~John Marston
