When you're building a character, or at least when I'm building a character, you start saying, 'How am I going to make people like him?'

~John Sandford

I'm so horny the crack of dawn isn't safe.

~John Sandford

With most of my books, I'll actually go out and look at the setting. If you describe things carefully, it kind of makes the scene pop.

~John Sandford

Nuts don't come in bunches. Only grapes do.

~John Sandford

Just go outside and look at something and write it down and you'll find it is a very nice piece of writing.

~John Sandford

They don't have a lot of crime in the countryside other than theft. But every once in a while, things turn ugly, and when they turn ugly, they turn very ugly.

~John Sandford

I've always been sort of interested in the rural countryside. Things happen out there that are very strange to city dwellers.

~John Sandford

Catholics don't scream about Jesus, they scream about the bishop.

~John Sandford

Most people like a little sex in their novels.

~John Sandford

There's something about marriage that is not as intensely romantic or interesting as a couple's first meeting.

~John Sandford

Most people who are trying to write kind of sit in their basements and pull it out of their imaginations.

~John Sandford

You have the feeling that if you get a Pulitzer, you're somehow set for life.

~John Sandford

Gonna rain like a cow pissin' on a flat rock" [drugstore clerk to detective Virgil Flowers] Dark of the Moon, p.7
