Love is the fart Of every heart It pains the man when 'tis kept close,
And others doth offend, when 'tis let loose.

~John Suckling

Tis not the meat, but 'tis the appetite makes eating a delight.

~John Suckling

She is pretty to walk with, And witty to talk with, And pleasant, too, to think on.

~John Suckling

Opportunity, to statesmen, is as the just degree of heat to chemists; it perfects all the work.

~John Suckling

Our sins, like to our shadows, when our day was in its glory, scarce appeared; toward our evening, how great and monstrous!

~John Suckling

Expectation makes a blessing dear. Heaven were not heaven if we knew what it was.

~John Suckling

Why so pale and wan, fond lover, Prithee, why so pale? Will, when looking well can't move her, Looking ill prevail? Prithee, why so pale?

~John Suckling

I prithee send me back my heart, Since I cannot have thine; For if from yours you will not part, Why, then, shouldst thou have mine?

~John Suckling

Abruptness is an eloquence in parting, when spinning out the time is but the weaving of new sorrow.

~John Suckling

Out upon it, I have loved Three whole days together; And am like to love three more, If it prove fair weather.

~John Suckling

But oh, she dances in such a way! No sun upon an Easter-day Is half so fine a sight.

~John Suckling

Joy never feasts so high as when the first course is of misery.

~John Suckling

'Tis expectation makes a blessing dear.

~John Suckling

Beauties that from worth arise are like the grace of deities.

~John Suckling

A health to the nut-brown lass, With the hazel eyes: let it pass. . . . As much to the lively grey 'Tis as good i' th' night as day: . . . She's a savour to the glass, And excuse to make it pass.

~John Suckling

Success is a rare paint, hides all the ugliness.

~John Suckling

A quiet mediocrity is still to be preferred before a troubled superfluity.

~John Suckling

But as when an authentic watch is shown, Each man winds up and rectifies his own, So in our very judgments.

~John Suckling

If I a fancy take To black and blue, That fancy doth it beauty make.

~John Suckling

Tis love in love that makes the sport.

~John Suckling
