For the most part, people don't know who I am.

~Jon Glaser

I'm sort of known in the comedy community as "Smooth Sailing," just 'cause everything always goes great. I've always had success at every turn.

~Jon Glaser

What one person might see as violent, someone else may see as beautiful. Maybe even art.

~Jon Glaser

Changing the world, one exclamation point at a time.

~Jon Glaser

I suppose we all have a lil' inner or outer a-hole inside of us, just waiting for the right opportunity to rear their own beautiful buttocks.

~Jon Glaser

I didn't necessarily set out to think of a show to make fun of reality shows.

~Jon Glaser

For me, it feels like my ideas are more specific to random thoughts or single ideas I might have, as opposed to being influenced by a general perception of absurdity.

~Jon Glaser

There were plenty of times some writers would make some kind of stupid joke to each other and then it was on TV that night or that week.

~Jon Glaser

Ground the main character in stupidity. Hire a good cast and a good crew.

~Jon Glaser

It's always been about when I do theater, the audience is just a viewer, not taking part in what's onstage. Whereas if you're doing stand-up, it's inclusive.

~Jon Glaser

If you're doing stand-up, there is no fourth wall; you're engaging an audience.

~Jon Glaser

If you're a stand-up, you're more or less yourself.

~Jon Glaser

I don't mind not having recognition. If it happens, fine, but it doesn't bother me that it's not there.

~Jon Glaser

I always feel like I'm forgetting things.
