Just trying to do something - just being there, showing up - is how we get braver. Self-esteem is about doing.

~Joy Browne

When in doubt, do the obvious.

~Joy Browne

Adulthood was invented to repair the wounds of childhood.

~Joy Browne

It's not unusual for kids in their twenties to be mad at their parents.

~Joy Browne

The American notion of family is perhaps the most romanticized, deep-rooted, and misery-producing fantasy of the last hundred years.

~Joy Browne

She's an idiot. She's looking at life through a selfish, lusty haze.

~Joy Browne

Getting enough of what you want without depriving anyone else is the ultimate act of selfishness and sanity.

~Joy Browne

Superstition is just fantasy with attitude; it's a way of erroneously trying to control events.

~Joy Browne

You're much more interesting when you're online - all of us are.

~Joy Browne

You don't need a reason to divorce someone you can't stand.

~Joy Browne

Take your hurt feelings and channel them into political activism.

~Joy Browne

It does no good to be right, if what you're craving is wrong.

~Joy Browne

We've turned into a nation of mothers to our men. I think it's a dreadful mistake that doesn't benefit anybody.

~Joy Browne

How do you take something and make it special? The answer is a lot of hard work and a great deal of imagination.

~Joy Browne

In its purest form, dating is auditioning for mating (and auditioning means we may or may not get the part).

~Joy Browne

A dedication to perfection means that we are doomed always to be just a heartbeat way - from exposure. Perfection is unchanging; lives are ongoing.

~Joy Browne

If we give up the notion that everybody's life is perfect but ours, we would be a lot happier. Nobody's life is perfect.

~Joy Browne

Infidelity, cheating is the easiest, stupidest, dumbest thing you can do.

~Joy Browne

Opposites attract - and then aggravate.

~Joy Browne

Charity always feels better to the donor than to the recipient.

~Joy Browne

The thing about sex is not that you're naked physically, but if you do it right, that you're naked emotionally.

~Joy Browne

It is a lot harder to put something back together than to keep it running.

~Joy Browne

You can certainly go to war about it, but to me it seems pointless.

~Joy Browne

Most of sex is psychological - most of it is between our ears and not between our legs.

~Joy Browne

Sex is meant to be, if not addictive, at least a very compelling behavior.

~Joy Browne

Sex is ... scratching an itch Everything else is something we project on a very simple act. It's the psychology, not the biology, that's complicated.
