Parent, Islands, Sound, Care, Impossible, Mountain, Night, Calling, Mind, Regret*

Never regret trusting someone. It proves you have a heart. But if he turns out to be a lying worm ... I'm not going to waste my time crying. Because I am way too fabulous for that.

~Judy Blundell

If the body is pampered, the mind is free to concentrate.

~Judy Blundell

When you lose your parents, the sadness doesn't go away. It just changes. It hits you sideways sometimes instead of head-on. Like now.

~Judy Blundell

C'mon, Amy, cinnamon rolls are calling us." Dan put a hand to his ear. "Do you hear? 'Amy? Dan?'" he squeaked. "'Come and get my sugary, sticky goodness!

~Judy Blundell

If you think something is impossible, it is. Until you decide it's possible and you do it.

~Judy Blundell

I loved him like a fever. Then he left. He kicked through love like it was dust and he kept on walking.

~Judy Blundell

Amy sighed. Just when she started to almost like Ian againâ€”after all, he'd flown across the ocean and had been working around the clock to helpâ€”his snob quotient went through the roof.

~Judy Blundell

I drove in last night,' he said. 'I couldn't sleep, it was too hot. So I went outside. I was feeling melancholy. Then I danced with a beautiful girl, and I felt better. What's your story?

~Judy Blundell

Oh, terrific," Dan muttered. "Just what we need. Another code! Why can't people just say what they mean? Why can't they say THE MAP IS IN THE DESK?

~Judy Blundell

I'm so hungry," Amy said sleepily. "Hey, you stole my line," Dan said.

~Judy Blundell

I loved all the parts of him, even the ones I didn't understand.

~Judy Blundell

When a family breaks you don't hear the crack of the breaking. You don't hear a sound.

~Judy Blundell

I knew that the deepest of tragedies was simple: to love, and not to be loved in return.

~Judy Blundell

I understood the word 'swoon'. It felt that way, like 'sweep' and 'moon' and 'woo', all those words smashed together in one word that stood for that feeling, right then.

~Judy Blundell

Cat tongues are awesome." --Nellie Gomez, The 39 Clues, Beyond The Grave

~Judy Blundell

Wouldn't. Think. About. Ian.
