When it comes to life, we spin our own yarn, and where we end up is really, in fact, where we always intended to be.

~Julia Glass

And then there's the personal question so many of Lassie's fans want to ask: Is he allowed on the furniture? Of course he is-but, then, he's the one who paid for it.

~Julia Glass

When most of us talk to our dogs, we tend to forget that they're not people.

~Julia Glass

Mind who you love. For that matter, mind how you are loved.

~Julia Glass

I see life as increasingly complex, vivid, colorful, crazy, chaotic. That's the world I write about...the world I live in.

~Julia Glass

Never talk yourself out of knowing you're in love or into thinking that you are.

~Julia Glass

Now is almost always the better choice. You never know about later.

~Julia Glass

I'd rather be pleasantly surprised than fatally disappointed.

~Julia Glass

There you are, diligently swimming a straight line, minding the form of your strokes, when you look up and see, always a shock, the currents you can't even feel have pulled you off course.

~Julia Glass

But things change, of course, and so do the ways in which people see themselves.

~Julia Glass

My publisher is generous with deadlines, which are never set in stone. Some writers need that pressure, but I am more productive when there's less panic.

~Julia Glass

Here we are - despite the delays, the confusion, and the shadows en route - at last, or for the moment, where we always intended to be.

~Julia Glass

I, too, seem to be a connoisseur of rain, but it does not fill me with joy; it allows me to steep myself in a solitude I nurse like a vice I've refused to vanquish.

~Julia Glass

Of all the virtues, discretion began to seem the most rewarding: it kept people guessing and sometimes, by default, admiring.

~Julia Glass

Knowing and understanding the people we love most is a process that continues well beyond their deaths... and is never complete.
