Cuba is such a beautiful country, and everywhere you go, there's music and people dancing - especially in Havana.

~Julia Sawalha

I do believe in an afterlife. I try to be at one with people and try to love life as much as I can.

~Julia Sawalha

I just love doing costume dramas; I am very lucky, as I see myself as a part-time time traveller.

~Julia Sawalha

I am always baffled by age, but to be honest with you, I feel like I am about 34. I feel better now and I am certainly healthier than I was in my early 30s. I am more rounded too.

~Julia Sawalha

I'd hate to be a sex symbol. Because you're always having to live up to an image. I haven't got time to sit around doing my nails.

~Julia Sawalha

I am extremely content in my life - sometimes to the point where I really should find something to moan about!

~Julia Sawalha

I think it's healthy to be insecure, to have nerves.

~Julia Sawalha

My dad's so likeable, you wouldn't feel in competition with him. If any boyfriends have ever felt that, they're long gone.

~Julia Sawalha

Ever since I can remember feeling love for my parents, I've been frightened of losing them.

~Julia Sawalha

Being a mum is something that's never bothered me too much. I have never felt a strong need to have children, but I am not averse to it either.

~Julia Sawalha

It's very hard to dramatise something factual and not make it look overdone, but also not to make it look so under-dramatised that it's dull.

~Julia Sawalha

I love a bit of glamour - who doesn't? - but I probably wouldn't be able to pull it off.

~Julia Sawalha

Actors think they're far more important than they are, and that can only lead to hurt. People with colossal self-importance have very far to fall.

~Julia Sawalha

I wouldn't miss the fame. I don't go out hunting for it. I try to avoid it and to slip into the background wherever I go.

~Julia Sawalha

I'm on a constant path of self-discovery and change. I'm trying to become a better person, a nicer person. I love therapy - it's brilliant.

~Julia Sawalha

I don't get inoculations or take anti-malaria tablets when I go abroad, I take the homeopathic alternative, called 'nosodes', and I'm the only one who never goes down with anything.

~Julia Sawalha

I'm not much of a baby freak - I like them when they're older.
