I simply remix an artist accommodating the way I wish to see this track. Remixing is entirely personal for me, music is entirely personal for me, and it has to be a natural process.

~Justin Broadrick

Inspiration has to be natural for me, not so considered, I am not saying that is right or wrong, it's simply what works for me.

~Justin Broadrick

Cultures have gone down and rebuilt again and I'm sure we're all facing the same level of extinction.

~Justin Broadrick

I'm always interested in very, very futuristic music and bridging the gap between the physicality of organic guitar music and trying to translate that into something electronic is really fascinating.

~Justin Broadrick

I think when you can be supremely self-indulgent sometimes it's easy to get up one's own asshole. I need parameters. I need discipline.

~Justin Broadrick

Electronic music, for me, has been the only real pioneering music that actually does push boundaries and is constantly futuristic.

~Justin Broadrick

I always fear dogma. I don't like anything that's dogmatic because it becomes purely religious again and I despise any form of organized religion.

~Justin Broadrick

There's always gonna be people saying they were so much better back in the day.

~Justin Broadrick

I know a lot of mainstream hip-hop people, have been listening to things like Aphex Twin for years. When somebody first played me some of that album, I was just like, "Woah!"

~Justin Broadrick

I've never been a huge prog fan. My background is punk. My background is learning how to play a bar chord and listen to Discharge records when I was a kid.

~Justin Broadrick

Ultimately I live in the now with artistic creation, not what could or could not be in the future, if a creation appears timeless in somebody's opinion, it won't in others, that's not for me to guess.

~Justin Broadrick

What I like about electronic music is you don't really need to be that learned or educated in any particular context. You can just make sound, noise even, whatever it may be.

~Justin Broadrick

I'd always loved hip-hop.

~Justin Broadrick

I do feel as if my own music as quite flawed, and it's that frailty or lack of technical proficiency that goes hand-in-hand with some sort of professionalism.

~Justin Broadrick

When I first started making music, for about the first 10 years, I was always the young kid. Everyone referred to me as such in any band.
