There are people like me who are not there yet, who are still the eagle flying high right now, still experiencing more in the world and growing as a result of that - and that is my journey.

~Karan Bajaj

What I'm trying to do right now is truly answer my most deepest most unarticulated questions for myself through my writing in some form.

~Karan Bajaj

What has happened in most of my books is the call to the extraordinary world, the hero's push, or that push has come to him.

~Karan Bajaj

I think his karma became to serve in nature and not to serve in the world, while I think my karma is to be in the world.

~Karan Bajaj

I don't think of the ashram world as being any more spiritual than the corporate world.

~Karan Bajaj

In the first 27 years of my life, I never had written a single non-technical word. I went to engineering college and went to business school. I never knew I could write fiction of any form.

~Karan Bajaj

There is a role for growth and experiencing the world, and pushing the boundaries of that, and then there is a time to bring it within. All people are at different stages of that journey.

~Karan Bajaj

I think nothing, at an objective level, is either right or wrong.

~Karan Bajaj

What I need to do is to just deepen my well. I'm just experiencing life now.

~Karan Bajaj

When I started, these [yoga] were very functional practices, as I said, productive to lose weight, or whatever, and now it has become a very spiritual kind of practice.

~Karan Bajaj

The first novel that I wrote was because I was having very interesting sorts of experiences, for Indians of my generation.
