If you ever feel comfortable in what you're producing, you've lost. You're not alive, that's it, it's stagnant water.

~Kate Tempest

Some things, it's very useful to begin without knowing fully where you're going.

~Kate Tempest

Never expect what you write to be any good, 'cause it's the fear of writing badly that stops you from finding the right words.

~Kate Tempest

Actually in the moment in which the idea has life, when it's listened to read, engaged with, acted on stage, it gains another dimension, it becomes three dimensional.

~Kate Tempest

There's enough brackets put on us already, we don't need to bracket our creativity anymore than we do.

~Kate Tempest

Allow yourself to be out of your depth at all times.

~Kate Tempest

You don't know how to get yourself out of that deep water until you're in the deep water.

~Kate Tempest

When you know a place, your feet have walked it so many times there's a comfort to it.

~Kate Tempest

It's actually a very liberating thing to have a creative community, which is something that we all kind of desperately search for and find in the ways that we can.

~Kate Tempest

When you're a story teller, you work out everything. You work out who these people are, what's going to be happening. The environment in which they live.

~Kate Tempest

When your tongue can taste shadows and your friends are shedding tears, That's when you know that hell is empty 'cos all the devils are here.

~Kate Tempest

Your job is to facilitate and improve your capacity so that when an idea comes you can facilitate it. That's your job as a human being, in my opinion anyway.

~Kate Tempest

The more you close the doors, the less free your ideas can come, and they come from up here and come through you.

~Kate Tempest

A story comes into your head fully formed, you know exactly the place, the setting, the people. All you've got to do is get it out and written as soon as you possibly can.

~Kate Tempest

I live or die for hip-hop and it's a beautiful form but you're a writer first and foremost.
