O, the red rose may be fair, And the lily statelier; But my shamrock, one in three Takes the very heart of me!

~Katharine Tynan

The life in which nothing happens goes the fastest, because it has no landmarks.

~Katharine Tynan

The kind need kindness most of all.

~Katharine Tynan

The trouble with the Irish question always has been that it was an English question.

~Katharine Tynan

There is an Irish way of paying compliments as though they were irresistible truths which makes what would otherwise be an impertinence delightful.

~Katharine Tynan

Often our bad moments are self-propelled ... And the drama is almost exclusively within our heads and hearts.

~Katharine Tynan

I have often heard it said that the Irish are too ready to forgive. It is a noble failing.

~Katharine Tynan

I have always believed that hair is a very sure index of character.

~Katharine Tynan

It's a strange thing now how people will know they're dying themselves when no one else could suspect anything wrong at all with them.

~Katharine Tynan

It is a horrible demoralizing thing to be a lawyer. You look for such low motives in everyone and everything.

~Katharine Tynan

Drawbacks are good when you are on holiday. If the holiday were too good you might not want to go home again.

~Katharine Tynan

Irish people have a trick of over-statement, at which one ceases to wince as one grows older.

~Katharine Tynan

The Irish always jest even though they jest with tears.

~Katharine Tynan

... Hope is at the bottom of the Pandora's box of Irish troubles, and I believe proudly and firmly in the ultimate destinies of my country.

~Katharine Tynan

January has only one thing to be said for it: it is followed by February. Nothing so well becomes its passing.

~Katharine Tynan

Religion dies hard in the Irish.

~Katharine Tynan

To be a saint does not exclude fine dresses nor a beautiful house.
